

Style

ENVIABLES

SNEAK ATTACK

Master sneaker maker Creative Recreation has teamed up with Saks Fifth Avenue to release the Turino as part of its high-end Italian line, Collection.

This recently-released shoe packs a stylized punch with hidden laces, elastic gore panels, a slim silhouette and fine Italian leather. $295, Saks Fifth Avenue at Fashion Show.

BE LIKE HAAN

Footwear powerhouses Nike and Cole Haan partner again to launch a new hybrid line, FLX. The aerodynamics of Nike crossed with the supple style of Cole Haan won't cause a flex in your pocketbook. Shoes $78-$138, accessories $110-$178, Cole Haan, available April 2010.

ODE TO THE ALLIGATOR

The laughing alligator and the clothing it emblemizes comes to life in Lacoste: The Element of Style (Assouline Publishing, 2010) by Olivier Margot. With 150 illustrations, this hardcover chronicle illuminates the legacy of René Lacoste and the "democratic luxuriousness" of his brand. $50, Assouline in Crystals at CityCenter.

The Look

Photographed by Tomas Muscionico

NICOLE MOFFATT, 24

Director, Centerpiece Gallery

Style Icon: Model Agyness Deyn, because "she wears things with such spirit."

What She's Wearing Now: Forever 21 sweater; 3.1 Philip Lim blouse; J Brand skinny jeans; Vince belt from Scoop NYC; scarf from Nordstrom; vintage necklace; Miu Miu handbag; Prada wedges.

Moffatt divines her fashion inspiration from GQ rather than Vogue: "Men just have this ease about the way they dress—clean, simple and always comfortable. My boyfriend's closet is a dream," she says. Still, Moffatt is all woman when it comes to shoes, from comfy Converse to sky-high heels. Her must-buy pair for spring: platform studded clogs from Miu Miu.

—Amy Schmidt